Education is the key. The more we know about it the better, but just like anything else teenagers are going to do what they are going to do regardless of what we explain to them. If it is not happening to people they know, then in their mind it means it will not happen to them.

The issue of vaping is not going away anytime soon. It will probably even increase after this Pandemic because students will want an excuse to do something bad just because why not. The real draw in the vape is not so much nicotine or the flavors, but the real draw is THC. With legalization of marijuana in PA right around the corner, the ability to get THC vape liquid will be easier and create an even bigger problem.
